LITERATURE

THE MOST FAMOUS COLLECTION OF 19TH CENTURY TAXIDERMIED DOG BREEDS IS IN THE ROTHSCHILD MUSEUM AT TRING, WHERE MOST SPECIMENS WERE MOUNTED BY THE SPECIALIST TAXIDERMIST ROLAND WARD OF THE 'JUNGLE' IN PICCADILLY, LONDON. BEFORE BEING PUT ON DISPLAY EACH MOUNT WAS SUBMITTED TO THE BREED JUDGES, AS EACH DOG HAD TO BE PASSED AS OF THE STANDARD REQUIRED FOR THE PERMANENT RECORD OF BREED FEATURES. TODAY THE MUSEUM COLLECTION SHOWS HOW THE PHYSICAL CHARACTERISTICS OF EACH DOG HAVE EVOLVED OVER TIME PROVIDING AN IMPORTANT HISTORICAL RECORD OF EACH BREED'S PAST.

THE PARSON 'JACK' RUSSELL WAS ORIGINALLY A BREED OF A SMALL WHITE FEISTY ENERGETIC TERRIER CALLED THE FOX TERRIER OF THE 18TH CENTURY. NAMED AFTER THE MAN CREDITED WITH THE CREATION OF THE BREED, THE REVEREND JOHN 'JACK' RUSSELL, WHO WAS A WELL KNOWN HUNTSMAN. IN 1819 HE BOUGHT A SMALL WHITE AND TAN TERRIER BITCH NAMED TRUMP FROM A MILKMAN IN THE VILLAGE OF ELMSFORD, AND THIS DOG FORMED THE BASIS FOR HIS BREEDING PROGRAMME. BY THE 1850'S THE DOGS WERE RECOGNISED AS A DISTINCT TYPE OF FOX TERRIER, BUT THE CONFORMATION SHOW VARIETY WAS NOT OFFICIALLY RECOGNISED BY THE KENNEL CLUB UNTIL 1990.
