LITERATURE

THE HUMAN HEAD HAD AN OVERWHELMING SIGNIFICANCE TO ALL CELTIC PEOPLE. THE HEAD SYMBOLISED DIVINITY ITSELF AND WAS THE POSSESSOR OF EVERY DESIRABLE QUALITY. AS THE CENTRE OF SPIRITUAL POWER IT WAS A CONSPICUOUS RECURRING IMAGE IN THEIR RITUALS, WARFARE AND MYTHOLOGY. THE HEAD APPEARS IN THEIR ART FROM THE EARLIEST KNOWN REPRESENTATIONS IN CENTRAL EUROPE TO THE ILLUMINATED MANUSCRIPTS OF THE CHRISTIAN IRISH. THE CELTS WERE HEADHUNTERS, BUT THEIR COLLECTING OF THESE TROPHIES WAS NOT JUST TO BOAST OF THEIR VALOUR AND PROWESS, THEY BELIEVED A PROTECTIVE POWER RESIDED IN THEM. STONE HEADS WERE OFTEN SCULPTED AS OFFERINGS AND PLACED IN SACRED SPRINGS, BOGS AND RIVERS WHERE THE GODS RESIDED. EXTENSIVE ARCHAEOLOGICAL EVIDENCE SHOWS THESE SITES TO BE PARTICULARLY FAVOURED FOR VOTIVE OFFERINGS, BUT IT HAS ALSO BEEN SHOWN THAT THE CELTS CONSTRUCTED PERMANENT SHRINES OF TIMBER AND OTHER RITUAL ENCLOSURES WHERE THE GODS COULD BE PROPITIATED.
